As an educator, Tami Hester Johnson has been fortunate enough to work with many of the school districts in Riverside, Los Angeles, and San Diego Counties as a consultant, trainer, teacher, school counselor, and employee. Ms. Johnson began her career working with students on probation and parole in a day treatment setting and has continued working to ensure that all students can achieve their best possible self. She currently works as a Program Specialist and District School Counselor in Cajon Valley Union School District. She also serves as an adjunct instructor at Point Loma Nazarene University and teaches graduate-level courses. Formally, she has worked as a high school teacher, elementary and middle school counselor, supervisor, and university academic advisor.

Ms. Johnson's hashtag occasionally is #thearkisfull. That really never stops the Johnson family, though. They rescue and love all creatures great and small. So far, the family has opened the doors to an African Sulcata named Gobano, two great danes named Duncan and Scooby, a chinchilla named Kiwi, a cat named Pumpkin, a Staffordshire terrier named Holly, and two additional dogs named Patches and Dobby. The Johnsons also love to travel and host exchange students. Ms. Johnson's three kids have study abroad and the family has hosted 11 exchange students from Germany. She enjoys going to the beach, is an amateur foodie, and loves going on adventures
